RUSSIAN TELLS

in the Arctic and Fram and Nicholas Land, the Russian expedition scoured several small islands. No trace of mineral was seen on any of the newly discovered land.

The Taymyr and Waygate will proceed from here directly to Vladivostok in a few days, having obtained a ample supply of coal here. The officers and crews of the ships are being entertained by the officers and men of the Thirteenth regiment, United States Infantry, stationed here.

The great cordiality of the officers from the Russian ships created a very favorable impression. Commander Wilkitsky is a young man of attractive appearance, and amiable. He takes his honors modestly, giving full credit to his officers and men.

The Russian expedition left Vladivostok under command of general relief, who was stricken with appendicitis in the sea and returned from over bay out of the Russian transport group. The command devolved upon Wilkitsky.

The ship brought back a remarkable collection of polar marine animal specimens, found about the land and which are incorporated in a large geological collection.

Nicholas Second Land was discovered August 1 and possession taken August 22. Russian colonists. The Russian colonists are now living in the northern part of the land.

The ship is now in the harbor of Vladivostok, having been delayed by the fog.

REPUBLICAN REFORM

EARLY last summer when Senators Borah and Cummins and several other Republican leaders of the near-progressive type advocated a Republican-national convention to reform the rules they were vigorously pooh-poohed by the stand-pat crowd. Uncle Joe Cannon said the Republican party as it is now constituted was good enough for him, and this enlightened sentiment was echoed by Penrose, Barnes, et al.

But four months time has worked a change. Two or three weeks ago the Republican state convention in New York had a resolution urging that a national convention be called to amend the rules so that hereafter delegates would be chosen "in the manner preferred by the Republican voters of each state," and to go further for representation "based more nearly on the Republican vote actually cast in the several states and congressional districts."

The fight for this resolution was led by Senator Root, who as chairman of the delegation at Chicago last year drove the same rule over the faction who opposed it for this very change. Barnes, of course, led the opposition to the resolution, but was reconciled to it when the convention agreed to recommend the election of the congressional districts as the basis of representation.

The action of the New York Republicans was received with immediate approval by party leaders generally, so it is not surprising that Chairman Miles has called a meeting of the national committee on December 10 "to confer on party affairs and to take any action which may be deemed desirable." Of course when the committee meets a large proportion of its membership will want to make the proposed changes in the rules themselves without taking the trouble to call a convention. But opposition to this plan is growing stronger, and in all probability a national convention will be called to meet not later than February.

This means that the first big battle for reform within the Republican party is virtually won, for there is scarcely a doubt that such a convention would make dramatic changes in the present rules whereby the national committee is the virtual dictator of the whole procedure under which the presidential nominee is chosen. The so-called progressive Republicans (by which we mean the men like Cummins and Borah and Kenyon who chafe under the iron rule of the Barnes-Penrose crowd and haven't nerve enough to break away from it and become real Progressives) insist that the control of the national committee over the seating of delegates in a national convention must be abolished. Senator Cummins declares that this is to be the chief issue in the fight. He wants the committee shorn of its power to make a temporary rollcall of delegates and to pass on the credentials of delegations before they are seated in the convention—the power whereby the Taft forces were able last year to control a convention which really wanted to nominate Roosevelt.

As a second consideration Senator Cummins demands that delegates to the convention shall be chosen in proportion to the number of Republican votes actually cast in their respective states. To most people this reform is no less vital than the other. Nothing could be more outrageously representative than the present method of choosing delegates to a Republican national convention, for it gives the balance of power, and generally the control, to the southern states which have yet to cast their electoral votes, and which the Republican organization is, it is merely a skeleton framework held together by a few federal office holders.

In actual practice the system gives more power in the convention to a few hundred Republican voters in Alabama and Georgia than is exerted by a hundred thousand Republicans in a northern state until it is replaced by an automatic method of apportioning delegates according to the number of votes cast for the Republican ticket in each state, national conventions of the G. O. P. will continue to be as farcical as was the one held in Chicago last year.

Our Republican friends will not admit it, but this reform is the direct result of the Progressive fight. It is a wholesome and beneficial thing, but unfortunately it comes too late. It smacks too much of deathbed repentance, which, according to general belief, is seldom efficacious. How does it happen that Senator Root has been converted? The man who, as chairman of last year's convention, made the rulings which literally forced the progressive element out of the party now leads the fight for the adoption of the very methods for which they contended.

Obviously he is insincere. He wants the rules revised because he regards it as the expedient thing to do; he knows that nothing else can keep the Republican party alive through another campaign. But he is administering oxygen too late. The Republicans who really wanted their party reformed have already gone over to the Progressive camp, and those who don't care are not numerous enough to make much difference in the election returns.

PUEBLO'S CHARTER

PUEBLO has been under the charter form of government less than two years, but already there is a movement afoot to amend its charter. The usual crowd of dissatisfied people have hired the usual aggregation of solicitors to circulate petitions, and as usually happens people are signing them. Most people sign petitions in the same spirit that they say "Good morning" merely to be agreeable. Some of them would sign a petition on either side of any question, without taking the trouble to learn what they were signing.

The Pueblo petitioners have decided that they want to get along with two commissioners instead of five and they propose to submit an amendment to that effect at the next election. We are not familiar with the merits of the case, but it would seem that the action is a trifle hasty. Eighteen months is a short period in which to test thoroughly the working of any plan of city government. The Pueblo charter seems to have worked fairly well thus far. Its defenders say that it has resulted in a more efficient and more economical administration of the city's affairs, but whether or not this is true it is rather doubtful whether anything would be gained by tinkering with the charter so soon after its adoption.

THE UTILITY OF GOOD ROADS

AT THE meeting of the American Road Congress in Detroit a few days ago, Representative Shackelford, chairman of the House Committee on Roads, opposed the idea of building a few transcontinental highways rather than spending an equal sum on a network of roads which would be useful chiefly to the farmer. In his opinion the costly highways would be used chiefly by motorists for pleasure touring, while the fairly good country road would be of much greater practical value because it would enable the farmer to get his crops to market. "You want fifty thousand miles of expensive road built in forty years," said Mr. Shackelford. "I want five hundred thousand miles of business and post roads built in five years."

It is doubtful whether more than one percent of the total mileage of the proposed transcontinental highways would not be equally available to the farmer and motorist. The fact is that the automobile has done more to stimulate road building in the last ten years than all the farmers combined accomplished in all previous time. Every automobile owner in the United States is required to pay a special tax, and he is entitled to something in return. If through his efforts, and largely with his money, a system of modern highways can be constructed the whole nation will be the gainer, and the farmer will receive his full share of the benefits.

FROM OTHER PENS

DEMOCRACY MARKED DOWN.

In other days the limit of true democracy took the form of dollar dinners. But Secretary of the Interior Lane has marked them down to 50 cents. Learning that the Denver chamber of commerce proposed entertaining him at a $7.50 a plate dinner, he promptly declined unless the price was brought within the reach of everybody. He declared, "I am passing it on to you, not because it proves that large families are always the best, but because it shows what a wonderful weight while thing a brave man and woman can make out of life, in spite of the handicap of financial stringency."

"I just can't keep still any longer about big families, for I think I have a right to say my say." Just this morning a young stranger asked to use my phone. After hearing him he said, "How many children have you, anyway?" I said, "None." He said, "My, how old are you, anyway?" "I'm 40," I said. He said, "Gee, if you just put on your glad rags, you could easily pass for 21." I said, "I have, more often been taken for one of my daughters. My husband and I were married when we were 17 and 19. I know that life is what we make it. I could have been, and possibly would have been, a sour old drudge if it had not been for my little daughter waking me up. When I had four, my husband had taken the two older girls to a big church, and when they came home, the second one, barely 4 years old, said, 'Oh, mama, it looks so funny to go down town and see all the pretty ladies all dressed up and come home and find no old man in an old wrapper.' I was only 22. I had a good cry, but had sense enough to get out of wrappers and be a pretty lady for the rest of my life. My children are all refined and I am proud to take them anywhere. I have often been told by friends who have only one or two that if they can raise their to be only one or two that will be satisfied. I tell them, 'If the work and work I have put into them.' We are a competitive family. I have always tried to make the wife work, and my little ones help, even letting the wife work at 16 months. Our girls are learning to cook and do housework as well as the girls, so they will be good husbands."

THE FRIEDMANN INSTITUTES.

It should be stated that the so-called "Friedmann" cure for tuberculosis is utterly discredited. Reports regarding the great success of the Friedmann method seem to have come from a few individuals who have never seen the disease, and who have not been able to find any scientific evidence to support their claims.

The Journal of the American Medical Association, the leading medical journal of the United States, has published a number of articles which have demonstrated the Friedmann method to be a complete fraud.

Dr. Maxineham reported on the results of 18 cases in New York in which Mr. Friedmann "treatment" was used, and stated that in not a single one of 18 cases was there definite improvement to date that could be attributed to the treatment. A 21st case of 18 cases, that physician of Canada was appointed to watch the patient long enough by Dr. Friedmann in the German hospital, and Dr. Friedmann's report is unfavorable report. Dr. Anderson, of Chicago, who has practiced in the United States government, watched the progress of the patients treated by Dr. Friedmann in this country. He also gave an unfavorable opinion as to the effect of the treatment. Dr. Friedmann "cure" has been condemned by German physicians generally. A report from the Rhode Island State Sanatorium on the results in 120 patients treated by the Friedmann method states that the patients "have shown none of the immediate and wonderful results reported by Friedmann, but that, on the contrary, about 17 per cent of the cases are worse than they might have been expected to be under ordinary sanatorium treatment."

This, and more, is true, and yet the company which is exploiting this so-called cure is, apparently, still finding physicians who are willing to aid in this inhuman business. After all, this might be expected; it has always been possible to find men willing to do disreputable work, if sufficient inducements are offered. While the medical profession abhors but a small proportion of men of this type, it has some within its ranks who are willing to sell their birthright of professional decency for a mess of pottage.

As has been previously said, the scheme of building Friedmann institutes in different states successfully evades any reprisal on the part of the federal government. It therefore devolves on the various states to take such action as is necessary to prevent the heartless exploitation of the unfortunate consumptive within their borders.

THE COW

BY GEORGE FITCH

Author of "At Good Old Siwash"

Of all the animals designed by nature the cow is one of the most successful.

She is a neat, durable animal of moderate size, and fitted with a large number of very ingenious conveniences. In fact the evidences are that the cow was constructed a long time after man was invented, and that she embodies the result of much more experience.

The cow is toothed and uses instead a cleverly designed cloven hoof, which is not afflicted with horns or hoofs.

Because of the fact that she does not need shoes the cow is able to afford four feet. With these she can travel twice as fast as an ordinary man, and can also eat at an angle of 30 degrees on a slippery hillside with perfect comfort.

The cow has no upper teeth. Those mortals who have spent their nights carrying a double set of implements are able to envy the cow with great fury.

It is known that whatever the amount does to her will increase her value from 25 cents to $1.00 a pound.

Current teeth around a bedroom and their days earning money enough to have these teeth yanked out and replaced, have cause to envy the cow with great fury.

The cow also has four stomachs. This enables her to have indigestion in one stomach and yet to limp along very nicely on three cylinders through a 100-course dinner. Because of her four stomachs the cow is also able to eat all day and far into the night.

The cow is also able to swallow her food in bunches and to chew it afterward. It is disgusting to think that nature has wasted this magnificent arrangement on a cow, while thousands of American business men are turning yellow and shriveling up with dyspepsia for want of it.

The cow is also able to carry her milk supply through the hottest summer without loss. And yet in spite of all these improvements and facilities the cow is not rich.

In fact she hasn't a cent to her name. Barring the fact that she is worth 25 cents a pound when converted into porterhouse steaks, dried beef and soup bones, she is a bankrupt, and has to depend for food all winter upon the efforts of a hired man with a pitchfork.

The cow is like too many humans. She is magnificently equipped for life, but she declines to work. Even when a cow strays upon a railroad track and faces a fast-rolling locomotive she maintains her placid disposition and her sweethearts of temper.

But perhaps this is because she knows that whatever the engine does to her will increase her value from 25 cents to $1.00 a pound.

Large Versus Small Family

BY RUTH CAMERON

A belated letter on the much-discussed subject of the large versus the small family has come to me. I am passing it on to you, not because it proves that large families are always the best, but because it shows what a wonderful weight while thing a brave man and woman can make out of life, in spite of the handicap of financial stringency.

"I just can't keep still any longer about big families, for I think I have a right to say my say." Just this morning a young stranger asked to use my phone. After hearing him he said, "How many children have you, anyway?" I said, "None." He said, "My, how old are you, anyway?" "I'm 40," I said. He said, "Gee, if you just put on your glad rags, you could easily pass for 21." I said, "I have, more often been taken for one of my daughters. My husband and I were married when we were 17 and 19. I know that life is what we make it. I could have been, and possibly would have been, a sour old drudge if it had not been for my little daughter waking me up. When I had four, my husband had taken the two older girls to a big church, and when they came home, the second one, barely 4 years old, said, "Oh, mama, it looks so funny to go down town and see all the pretty ladies all dressed up and come home and find no old man in an old wrapper."

I was only 22. I had a good cry, but had sense enough to get out of wrappers and be a pretty lady for the rest of my life. My children are all refined and I am proud to take them anywhere. I have often been told by friends who have only one or two that if they can raise their to be only one or two that will be satisfied. I tell them, "If the work and work I have put into them."

We are a competitive family. I have always tried to make the wife work, and my little ones help, even letting the wife work at 16 months. Our girls are learning to cook and do housework as well as the girls, so they will be good husbands."

DEMOCRACY MARKED DOWN.

From the Pittsburg Dispatch.

In other days the limit of true democracy took the form of dollar dinners. But Secretary of the Interior Lane has marked them down to 50 cents. Learning that the Denver chamber of commerce proposed entertaining him at a $7.50 a plate dinner, he promptly declined unless the price was brought within the reach of everybody. He declared, "I am passing it on to you, not because it proves that large families are always the best, but because it shows what a wonderful weight while thing a brave man and woman can make out of life, in spite of the handicap of financial stringency."

ODDS AND ENDS

By J. A. L. BROWN

"The Miners" this year have something to write to. "Miners" from with good coaches, good material, and the old time spirit. They should and probably will bring home the pennant again."—Golden Transcript.

There are two or three other events over the state, however, that expect to have something to say about this.

"Going easy for a long time," marks the Fort Collins Review, "always will be Col. Roosevelt's smooth move for renomination, owing to the well known effect of absence on the heart."

"Many Bankers Favor Hill," headlined the New York Evening Post in advance of the recent bankers' convention. They "concluded remarkably well with their dissembling their love."

Here's a meritorious suggestion from the Kansas City Star: "Why don't South Carolina and Washington award Judge Humphries and 'Coley' Bleasie 'sights' instead?"

The Washington Star well says that the president's influence with congress is so great that he can block the contemplated raid on the civil service. But will he do it?

Jack London evidently had the right hunch when he voted for woman suffrage on the theory that the women would drive the saloons from California. It was in 1910 that women got the ballot, since then the number of dry towns has increased from 200 to 682.

Mr. Barnes says Colonel Roosevelt is irresponsible; but if our memory is correct, on the job, the colonel was responsible for numerous things that happened to Mr. Barnes.—Philadelphia North American.

Everyone must credit this interesting public service to the world's press. It has shamed Thaw into the background for a whole week.

"Republicans," says the Philadelphia Ledger, "should set their house in order." Also they should confer on the public the great favor of advancing the principles for which they intend to stand.

Doubtless the recall would interfere with the independence of some judges. Judge Humphries of Seattle, for instance, would not have had the "independence" to commit scores of people to jail because he was angry with them if he could be recalled.—Kansas City Star.

PROF. CLARK TO LECTURE ON "PICTURESQUE SICILY"

Stereopticon Views to Show Historic

Old World Places and Scenes of

Great Interest

Prof. Edward W. Clark, prominent lecturer on historic subjects of the old world, will speak at Perkins hall next Wednesday evening on "Through Picturesque Sicily." The lecture is to be given under the auspices of the Colorado Springs Society of the Archaeological Institute of America. Prof. Clark will show lantern slides to illustrate his discourse. He is a graduate student of the University of Leipzig, Germany, where he studied two years. He obtained his A. B. and
A. M. degrees at Oberlin college.

Prof. Clark spent one term at Chicago university and one year in the American School for Classical Studies in Rome. For 14 years he was professor of Latin and Roman archaeology in Ripon college, Wis., and for the last four years has been a resident of Rome, Italy, as a student and lecturer and is also representative of the Bureau of University Travel of Boston. He has traveled in Egypt, Greece, the Holy Land, Sicily and in all of Europe. Prof. Clark has lectured many times in the larger cities of the United States.

He calls Sicily the "checkered board of nations." Again he calls this island the "archaeological museum of Europe and the pearl of the Mediterranean." He lays great stress in his lecture on historic scenes and the Greek period which offers many splendid ruins of temples and other edifices for his lantern slides but he does not neglect interesting discussions
of modern Sicilian life.

Rev. Pitner Inspires
Heavers at St. Pauls

Two hundred people listened to the eloquent words of Dr. W. F. Pitner at St. Pauls church yesterday morning and at the close of his inspiring address pledged themselves to a week of strictures to arouse every member of the church to be present next Sunday and also dedicated themselves to do their utmost for the church building enterprise now practically assured of success.

In the evening almost half as many as were present in the morning crowded into the church and listened to the story of how Dr. Pitner has achieved amid apparently impossible conditions. At the close of the evening service the pastor, the Rev. W. E.
Bennett, called for those who believed in prayer to remain for a few minutes of silent communion about the altar
where an average of 100 a year have given their hearts to God under his ministry, and it was soon filled with earnest men and women reciting God's blessings upon the efforts of the week.

Dr. Pitner, after a brief talk with the Indian Aid society and the meeting at 10 o'clock, there will be a great and festive meeting of men at 11 o'clock. The Rev. Dr. Scott, the local superintendent of the Rev. Dr.
M. M. Price of the Oklahoma, on Clegg, the Rev. J. H. Ketcham and the Rev. W. P. Read of Kansas City, Mo., will be the speakers and greatest addressers to be heard by the people in the church. The services will be conducted in English and the sermon will be in English.

It is therefore one of unusual anticipation and too much of it will be told on the remarkable and mother's happy pre-natal days upon the health and fortune to come.

It is recommended only for the comfort of expectant mothers,
which have used and recommended it on sale at all drug stores. Write to the

SPRINGS POST OFFICE PREPARES TO HANDLE BIG VOLUME OF BUSINESS DURING HOLIDAYS

Postal Heads Expect Great Amount of Work
Due to Parcel Post; Instructions Issued

With the holiday rush but two months away, post office officials are already making plans for the handling of the tremendous amount of parcel post work that it is believed will mark the completion of the year's list of new service.

A greater co-operation from the customers of the parcel post is going to be required by the government during the next few months, and word has been received by the local offices
to advise the public of the necessary precautions.

In this connection Postmaster General
Henry C. Schaffner received from Daniel C.
Hoffman, first assistant postmaster general,
the following letter, which indicates a difficulty encountered in the service and makes prominent certain sections of the parcel post regulations which it is considered advisable to firmly impress upon the customers of the department.

Complaints have reached the department of the frequent breakage or of damage to articles sent through the mail as parcel post, due evidently to improper packing or wrapping.

Postage Must Be Properly Wrapped.

"This condition indicates clearly that attention is not being given to section 17 of the parcel post regulations, which states plainly that postmasters must refuse to receive for mailing parcels not properly indorsed or packed for safe shipment.

"Postmasters and clerks are informed that whenever it is shown that the loss or damage to a parcel or its contents is clearly the result of improper packing or wrapping at the time of its receipt at the office of origin the person responsible for its accident in that condition will be held accountable for the damage."
